HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Bowling Green—A mushroom that furnishes light in the dark woodlands, has been found by Professor E. L. Mosely, head of the biological science department of the state college here. It was found in a hollow stump near here. It is one of the few phosphorescent varieties of life and sheds a weird glow in the darkness, which can be seen for some distance.

Shawnee—Lynn Nichols, of Shawnee, has been ordered to go to Philadelphia to have charge of the Ohio exhibit at the Sesqui-Centennial for a two weeks' period.

Gallipolis—The 1926 Eisteddfod will be held in Jackson October 1. Dr. David Hugh Jones, a prominent Welch man of Evanston, Illinois, will conduct the sing.

Marysville—Eightieth annual Union county fair will be held here September 7 to 10. Many sheep, cattle and exhibits shown at the State fair will be brought here.

Cleveland—Albert Collins, 32, federal prohibition agent and principal in numerous shooting afrays, today was held by police on a manslaughter charge, when his automobile, driven at a high rate of speed, killed Charles Weinstein here yesterday.

Carrollton—Joseph V. Lawler, 78, former postmaster of Carrollton and prominent in Democratic politics died here today.

Columbus—Three men accosted Charles W. Hudler in his garage here and robbed him and his wife of $300 in cash and more than $5,000 in jewelry.

Hudler, a used car dealer, had gone to the garage to test out new car when the men forced him and his wife to turn over their jewelry and money.

Columbus—Governor Vic Donahey reviewed the 166th infantry regiment, O. N. G. here yesterday, in its first parade and review since the close of the war.

The troops, "Pride of Central Ohio" had served as a unit of the Rainbow Division in France.

Old Pleasure Recalled

In these days of modern apartments, it is wondered how many can recall the pleasure derived on a rainy day from climbing the old attic stairs, and, to the tune of raindrops pattering on the tin roof, rummaging in one of the numerous trunks or boxes under the eaves, or settling down in a comfortable spot to pore over the pages of back numbers of a popular magazine.

Mr. E. Irwin Gephart, son of Mr. Charles W. Gephart, of Delaware, formerly of Williamsport, has been employed as principal of the Delaware high school for the coming year.

Patent Office Deluged by Radio Applications

Washington.—The use of radio has resulted in the swamping of the United States patent office under the greatest deluge of applications in history.

Although the number of examiners handling radio applications has been almost trebled, there are 1,820 petitions pending as compared with 1,594 on January 1, and the radio division is five months behind the applications.

Applications increased to such an extent after broadcasting attained popularity that radio was constituted a separate division in August, 1924, but even with twelve assistants in the division, it has lost ground steadily under the great influx of applications.

Sees England on Eve of Spiritual Revival

London.—England is on the eve of a great spiritual revival, in the opinion of the Bishop of Salisbury, who spoke at a recent meeting of the church assembly.

He said a remarkable movement had been started among young men at Oxford, Cambridge and other universities to present the fourth report of the missionary council throughout the country. A campaign by 133 students was being conducted in four dioceses and in September 186 students will conduct another campaign.

"It is certain," continued the bishop, "there are already signs that the living power of God is working among us. I see it in the progress of revision of the prayer book. I could see it in the wonderful spirit that passed all over the country when the general strike was called off and in all ways the spirit of God is present and we have a revival coming."

SLENDER HOPE FOR APPROVAL OF PROPOSAL

Norfolk & Western Railroad May Not Acquire the Virginian Line.

Abandonment of hope for approval of the lease of the Virginian railway to the N. & W., now pending before the interstate commerce commission, and the probability of a renewed proposal that the N. & W., be leased by the Pennsylvania railroad are indicated in latest reports from railroad authorities in New York.

The Pennsylvania now hold close to 50 per cent of the N. & W. capital stock, as compared with 39 per cent at the beginning of the year, according to the recent reports. It has increased its holdings in both common and preferred stock.

This increase in holdings is regarded as foreshadowing another offer, which was rejected by the leading minority holders, was to take the property as it stands by a guarantee of 10 per cent on the common stock, but minority holders contended that N. & W. cash surplus and its coal company rights should be distributed before the lease was put into effect.

Acquisition of the N. & W. would make the Pennsylvania the largest railroad in the country from the standpoint of mileage and capitalization.

The adverse report on the proposed lease of the Virginian by the N. & W., by the commission's examiners has blasted hopes that the lease will be approved. Rarely has the commission acted contrary to recommendation of its examiners.

The consensus of opinion in the financial district is that the Virginian will either be left as an independent carrier of coal or attached to the C. & O., to which it has closer geographical affiliation.—Chillicothe News Advertiser.

MAN KILLED AND AUTOIST IS ARRESTED

Former Residents of Williamsport Have a Most Distressing Accident.

Mrs. Daisy Haines, formerly of Williamsport and Washington C. H., but now of St. Petersburg, Florida, was severely injured in an automobile accident at Bridgeton, New Jersey, last Thursday, when her car driven by her son, Richard Haines, collided with another auto driven by William Lawrence, 19, of Marlboro, New Jersey, at a cross road.

Lawrence was killed in the accident and Mrs. Haines was seriously injured and is now in the Bridgeton hospital where her recovery is said to be doubtful. Richard Haines was only slightly injured. Mrs. Haines suffered a fractured skull and a broken left arm. Richard Haines was arrested on the charge of manslaughter and was confined in the Salem county jail with bond fixed at $1,000.

The Haines family formerly lived in Williamsport, where they conducted a furniture store.—Williamsport News.

Pittsburgh, Aug. 24.—A mad man may have been responsible for the bombing of the Farmers' Deposit Savings Bank here today, with the death of two men and injuries to more than a score of others, according to police tonight.

The discovery of a notebook near the spot where the bomber's decapitated body was found led detectives to believe that a maniac, who recently created disturbances in the City Hall, and who escaped from a city asylum August 10, was the man who carried out his threat to blow up the bank when his demand for $2,000 was not met.

Ensemble Sweater Strikes New Note

Two Sweaters, One Over Other, Favored by Motion-Picture Actress.

The sweater as a fashion item for summer has "conspicuously" returned. This season it is not only smart for resort and country club wear, occasionally showing itself in town, but it has become a practical outfit which is smart for traveling as well as for general day-time wear. Particularly is this true of the new pure silk knitted sweater costume which comes in darker colors for town as well as in delightful pastel shades for the seashore.

The new note in the sweater family is the ensemble, consisting of two sweaters, one of which is worn over the other. Generally, the sweater worn beneath is a colorfully striped slip-on. This, worn with a plain-colored mannish coat sweater the same shade as the skirt, makes a delightfully chic costume.

To wear with the popular youthful plaited silk skirt, a slip-on sweater of finely woven wool such as Eleanor Boardman, popular screen actress, is wearing, is smartly fashionable this season. The finely turned student collar worn with a bright-colored tie gives it an added youthful zest. Many of these sweaters are shown in horizontal stripes of striking colors, either in equal-sized stripes or wider and narrower combinations. Block effects in brilliant contrasting colors are particularly chic.

As to necks, one may choose from the popular student collar with its youthful becomingness, which Miss Boardman wears so charmingly, the smart Jenny neck which introduces a new note by having the neck bound with crepe de chine, or the chic V neck, which looks so smart with the popular choker necklace.

Uneven Hemline Found to Be Liked Feature

The uneven hemline distinguishes the majority of French garden party gowns that are made of any solid material. Scalloped edges have enjoyed such a long popularity that dressmakers have been forced to seek something new, and after doing clever things with little rectangular turrets, they have now produced a hemline with the scallops reversed, so that the points instead of the curves reach the lowest line.

A Molyneux ensemble worn at a garden fete at the American embassy consisted of a straight black coat lined with black and white polka-dotted foulard. This latter also formed the simple gown that had a pretty one-sided bow effect in the arrangement of the cravate.

Disclosed Hemline Is British Fashion Note

The disclosed hemline will be featured this autumn, according to the plans of the British haute monde.

Two and three-piece suits will be worn, with full-length coats that are to terminate just an inch above the skirt hemline.

The ensemble in its original form is also favored by smart English women. Apparently all opposition to this theme as being hackneyed and out-moded has disappeared, and the ensemble may now be said to have won a permanent place in the mode.

Evening Frocks Low in Back

The evening frocks present a most staid and sober appearance from the front. The neck line at that point is very high and only slightly rounded. But the back—all there is to the back of many evening dresses is a pair of suspenders of self material which attach to the dress at a low waistline and cross at a point on the spine where the low décolleté was wont to be.

Elbow Bracelets

The graduated bangles which have been worn around the neck now have been adapted for the arms and are worn just above and below the elbow. They are of gold drawn wire and are broad and flat in shape. Five are usually worn on the arm, but only one arm is so decorated.

SOCIAL AFFAIRS

Mrs. Willard F. Story and Mrs. Ray Maynard, engaging young matrons, whose entertaining is always characterized by beauty, perfect appointments and charming cordiality, added to the season's full calendar Thursday in one of the loveliest parties of the season. It was a luncheon-bridge honoring Mrs. William W. Westerfield, of New Orleans, La., whose friends are so greatly enjoying her visit and crowding the all too short period of her stay with delightful affairs, numerous small, intimate ones as well as the larger parties.

Five tables of beautifully gowned young women were assembled in the spacious adjoining rooms of the Story home for an elaborate luncheon of particularly delicious viands, accompanied by exquisite appointments that made them doubly appetizing. Each small table was centered with an exquisite little water garden of pink roses, feverfew and lavender gypsophalia, the pale rose crystal, the nut cups of pink roses and the pastel place cards completing the artistic decorating.

A gorgeous profusion of seasonal flowers, immense zinnias in huge baskets, especially effective, vied with the smaller blossoms in creating a most attractive background.

In the gay game of the afternoon the favors were lovely hand made handkerchiefs in different pastel shades, presented to the honor guest, and the winners at each table.—Washington C. H. Herald.

REQUEST

Of Dead Senator Followed By Vice President.

Washington, Aug. 24.—(UP.)—For the first time in many years, a Senator will not have at his funeral an official committee from the Senate, when Senator Bert M. Fernald, Republican, of Maine, is buried.

One of the last requests of Senator Fernald, who died at his Maine home yesterday, was that no such committee be present.

It is an almost invariable custom for the Vice-President to name a committee of about ten Senators to attend a deceased Senator's funeral. Senator Fernald himself had attended many funerals as an official member during his ten years as a Senator. Vice President Dawes acceded to his request, however, and named no committee.

Donahey Flatly Asserts At Convention He Will Not Seek Home In White House.

Governor Donahey of Ohio will not be a candidate for the presidential nomination.

He made that flat statement yesterday to the Democratic state convention.

"I know my own limitations," he told the delegates.

"For three and a half years I have had rough sailing," he continued. "I have run the gauntlet. I have been inspected and investigated. Snoopers have trailed me. My integrity has been questioned by innuendo, but I defy anyone to point out one single act of mine that has not been in good faith.

"For 20 years I have served the public and during that time not a dirty dollar has crossed my palm.

"When I become governor again I will not spend my time working for the presidency. I have not and will not become a candidate for president. I know my own limitations."

SAVING TO ATTEND FRANCE CONVENTION

While more than 500 banks in the United States have established American Legion Savings clubs to encourage Legionnaires to save their money for the trip to France with the Legion in 1927, stories are pouring in to the France convention committee of the Legion at Indianapolis of men who are doing extra or unique work to earn additional money for the pilgrimage.

One of these is Charles R. Adams, 20 South Church street, Waynesboro.

Pa., a rehabilitated World war veteran who is raising chickens during extra hours. Adams went through the whole gamut of war's horrors, including German prison camps, after he was captured when a tank with which he was serving was hit by shells three times in two gas attacks and finally was set on fire.

Unable to resume his pre-war occupation of machinist's helper, Adams was taught auto ignition. He now is a partner in an auto electrical company, is manager of the electrical department, owns his own home and has three fine children.

Directors Named for Boys' Baseball Program

Regional athletic directors to have charge of the American Legion's national baseball program for boys have been appointed by Frank C. Cross, director of the National American commission, which is developing the project.

Roy E. Rice of Waterbury, Conn., was placed in charge of the First or Eastern region. Included in this are the New England, the Atlantic and the Chesapeake bay states.

Forrest A. Burke of Springfield, Ill., directs the Second or Central region, including the Seaboard, Great Lakes and Southeastern states.

L. B. Allison, director of athletics at the University of South Dakota, Vermillion, S. D., is director of the Third or Middle Western section. In this are included the corn belt, the northern and the southwestern states.

D. L. Templeton, director of athletics at Leland Stanford university at Palo Alto, Calif., directs the Fourth or Far Western region, embracing the Pacific Northwest, the Pacific and the Rocky mountain district.

The Legion boys' baseball plan contemplates the holding of contests and championships in local cities, in districts, in states and in four regions, with the junior world's series in connection with the national convention of the Legion each year. The first junior world's series was scheduled to be a feature of the Legion convention at Philadelphia from October 11 to 15, 1926.

May Have New Building to House War Records

Erection of a splendid public archives building at Washington to house World war records and other valuable government documents, will probably be a thing of the near future.

Provision for the erection of the archives building was included in a public building bill passed at the last session of congress. The archives building project has been actively supported by the American Legion ever since the Legion's third national convention at Kansas City in 1921.

PREHISTORIC BOY PLAYED MARBLES

Toys Found With a Skeleton Buried 2,000 Years.

Chillicothe, Ohio.—The skeleton of a twelve-year-old boy, with a number of marbles, prized relics of childhood, were removed from the Bricker mound of the Selp group, near Bainbridge, eighteen miles west of here, the other day.

This is the second of a group of burials found in the rear of the mound, where last year the "great pearl burial" was unearthed and where this summer five cremated burials, with the usual finds of black, tan and white wildcat jaws and marine tortoise shell combs were disclosed.

The boy's body had been interred in a cabin-like structure and was covered with a cenopy, the mold of which was found. The body had been clothed in a garment of woven fabric.

The grave contained many unusual ceremonial specimens, H. S. Shetron, curator of the Ohio museum, said.

"We found a number made from chlorite, a fine, close grained stone which takes a very high polish; engraved in beautiful designs. They had been placed there reverently by loving hands," he reported. "We believe that the game of marbles was a time-honored pastime even in the days of the Mound Builders. These little fellows probably lived more than 2,000 years ago," he continued, for the first time hinting at his idea of the age of the mounds.

Besides the marbles there were found a stone carved in the shape of a turkey vulture, carefully cut down to the feather markings; another stone carved like a lizard, with a tail resembling the rattle of a rattlesnake; beads, green chlorite resembling turquoise, many well-cut mica designs, teeth of raccoon, fox, wolf, mountain lion, bear and other wild animals which roamed the forest, pierced so that they could be strung and worn as ornaments; woven fabric, obsidian spear points and a few bits of copper.

Two Peasant Women Get Legion of Honor

Paris.—That coveted decoration, the Legion of Honor, which represents so much to the French people, has been awarded to two peasant women farmers, in continuance of a tradition established a few years ago, to encourage large families and fidelity to the land by means of France's highest honor.

The citations in the Journal Officiel accompanying these two nominations as Knights of the Legion of Honor, read:

"Madame Piron, farmer at Vieu d'izenave (Lin department), 45 years' practice of agriculture, mother of 16 children, lost two sons in the war. Has 11 children still living, all working land from her earliest years. By her incessant toil and spirit of initiative has succeeded in making her farm a model for the district."

"Madame Peres, widow, farmer at Kervin-en-Scaer (Finistere department), 44 years' practical work on the land. Mother of 13 children, and six sons mobilized, three of whom were killed in action. With the help of her seven daughters kept her farm in good state of culture during the war. May be cited as an example of courage and of dignified life."

Renew Lightning Rods Put On by Ben Franklin

London.—New lightning rods are being installed on St. Paul's cathedral, which Benjamin Franklin originally equipped with lightning conductors. In 1770 he was in England negotiating in connection with the difficulties Great Britain was having with its American colonies, which were becoming restless, and it was at this time he helped to install the conductors. The original rods on the famous cathedral were iron, and the engineers who are now adjusting copper rods have a fragment of the original iron conductor which the American devised.

LIFE'S LITTLE JESTS

ON SCHEDULE

"Can I go to the funeral of Tony's father on Saturday?" asked little Bobby of his mother directly after returning home from school.

"But, Bobby," protested his mother, "this is only Monday. Surely they are not going to keep his body that long?"

"Of course not," Bobby retorted indignantly. "Why, they aren't even going to hang him till Friday."

A Deep Book

The librarian had one customer who used to say: "Well, give me a book o' wade through."

"See if you can wade through this," was the reply on one of these occasions.

"What is it?"
"Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea."

A Firm Stand Needed

Young Wife—My husband likes your cooking, Della, but he wants to know if you can make your toast a trifle thinner.

Della—Tell him no, ma'am, from both of us; if we'd be givin' in to him now, in six months there'd be no livin' with him.

A DECIDED BLOND

He—I find Ethel charming—a decided blond.

She—Oh, did she decide to be a blond?

Does His Utmost

"I never took a motor car trip with Jones. Is he a handy chap around a car?"

"Well, yes; if there's a tire to be changed, Jones is always ready to hold the valve cap."

Had Head Start

Reggie—I'm thinking of going into the hollow ware business, Miss Sharpe.

Miss S.—You should have a good head for such work.

A Risky Pastime

He—I'm going out for a little walk. She—Have you a card in your pocket with your telephone number and address on, so the hospital or morgue will know whom to notify?

Should Ask for It

Boss—Did you show that customer any consideration?

New Clerk—No, sir, but showed her everything else we have.

A Durable Bird

Woman—This is a very small chicken—

Grocer—Yes, ma'am, but it will take you a long time to eat it.

Chivalry at Its Best in Old Cow Country

The real cowboy, unlike his synthetic rival, spent little if any time in rescuing maidens. His abstention from this delectable pastime was due in no way to absence of chivalric impulse, but wholly to lack of material available for melodramatic succor. The fact was that, save upon the ranches in southern Texas and within the limits of the cow towns, there were few women in the cattle country. The cattle country was overwhelmingly masculine in population.

Nevertheless, when the women of the ranches, whether Texan or elsewhere, needed aid, the men of the range rallied to them. Feminine need for relief rarely arose except during Indian forays or when illness or injury struck home. Nowhere could there have been found nurses more solicitous than in the little group of punchers who engineered a travails throughout its snow-swept bumping journey, and insured that the travails burden of an uncomplaining pain-farked woman should reach the hospital, 100 miles or more away. Toward pure womanhood the actual puncher had what amounted to reverence.—Philip Ashton Rollins, in the Saturday Evening Post.

THE WHOLE WORLD

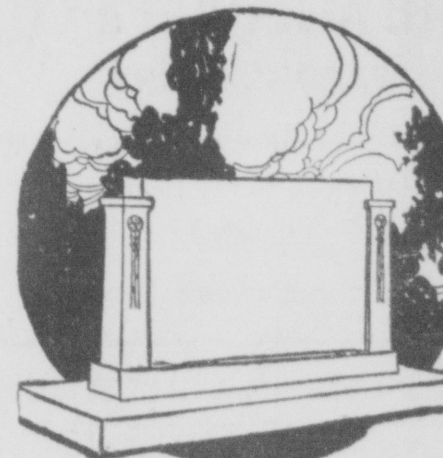

Realizes today that all prosperity depends on the prosperity of the farmer—1925 was a better year than 1924 and 1926 will be still better. The farmer is represented by a majority of land owners and real dirt farmers in all legislative bodies—State or National. The great demand for food is increasing as the population grows. We can't exist without good, wholesome food and the farmer that produces what we eat must be properly compensated.

The sources of money supply are alive to the fact that money loaned on farm lands is safest. Rates on City property is usually 6½ per cent. We have unlimited money for the farmer at 5 per cent and 5½ per cent.—10 and 20 years. You to select the loan that suits your purpose best. We have farms for sale that will pay you to own. A farm is the best basis of credit.

Even the plainest—is a more difficult task than one would suppose. It involves much thought, and perhaps many conferences, as to the design, the kind of stone, the lettering, and so forth. Then the work has to be done by skillful sculptors and others. But we always manage to give satisfaction.

the production, "The Fortieth Fete" in this eventful epoch of minstrelsy.The fortieth annual edition will be spirit of old-time minstrelsy in the hearts of the people and in this they have been more than successful.Blackface Eddie Ross with his Afri-

Jack Richards, the Welsh tenor, is at gravating pests found in the new world when the colonists first came to America. In fact, Capt. John Smith, as early as 1609, wrote of having found it, and gave a very accurate description in some of his records of the effect of the weed. Strangely enough, he was never poisoned by it himself, but saw the sufferings of oth-

Last Public DanceWebster, S. D.—Sioux Indians, resplendent in feathers and paint and the native garb in which they roamed the plains before the coming of the white men, danced before a crowd of thousands from all over northeastern South Dakota at the north end of Pickeral lake on Adam's beach. The dance lasted all one night recently and brought to an end a two-day celebration and barbecue for which the Indians assembled.A feature of the program was the last public dance of Chief Williams, aged and widely known Sioux leader, who declared he had known and loved the white man since first becoming acquainted with him in Montreal when the whites were moving into the northwest.
Chief Williams had four sons aged warrior danced about thirty seconds and then made a speech to the assembled crowd.

He said this would be the last time he would ever dance in a on Paris' Fashion CardThe latest development of the cape-coat as seen at the smartest afternoon functions, writes a Paris fashion authority in the New York Herald-Tribune, has the cape much narrower than that which prevailed earlier in the season, and it is often sewn down the side seams of the coat, left free only at the hem, which is usually curved in an oval, giving a lengthened bolero effect.One-sided effects are most popular.

Berthe made a pretty foulard gown that was worn recently at the British embassy. Of Blanchini Eriker's printed silk, with a graduated flower design in beige on a sapphire blue foundation, it was gathered on each hip, having about three times the fullness on the left side as on the right. The neck was cut square in front with a little collar that stood up at the back and was continued into a narrow cra-vate that tied in a loose bow just below the square of the décolletage.
The sleeves were long and loose, being made of the smaller part of the design, like the corsage, while the large flowers were reserved to the wrap-over skirt.At Denerville slim lines and skirts just over the knee are still worn. Fullness is there, but is disguised into the straight silhouette.Crystal Fashionable in Pins, OrnamentsWith radically new styles in hats are shown many intriguing novelties in the ornaments, pins and motifs of different kinds. Attention is now being devoted to these ornaments and has resulted in some set with jewels—onyx, jade, lapis, tourmaline, fine enamel, brilliants and, most of all, crystal, which is more fashionable than ever. Fine and very lovely things are made of genuine crystal cut in artistic shapes, some of which are etched in picturesque designs. In the ensemble scheme (which includes accessories) chokers, long necklaces, brooches, earrings and bracelets are much worn. Earrings appear to grow steadily longer and larger, matching the most extravagant fashions of the ancients, and it is the very latest fancy to wear several slender circles of crystal around the throat and several on the wrist. Fragile as these look, they are really quite durable, but, as to their weight, much is endured for the sake of fashion. There are also vanity cases in crystal.Select Large Hat When Standing Before MirrorIn choosing one of the big hats that never were so popular before for both city and country wear, one should be careful to make her selection while standing up before the mirror. One should see the figure at full length to determine the becomingness of the hat. Often a short, plump woman will buy a hat that cuts off her height. A big hat is especially hard to choose.
It must droop gracefully as the wearer walks.But regardless of the difficulty in selection everyone must wear a large hat this season. This picturesque vogue emphasizes all the feminine grace and is particularly lovely in summer.Reversible HatsReversible hats are amusing and practical, made of contrasting ribbon belting or a combination of straw and fabric. They have soft crowns and may be worn either side out.Grosgrain Bag to Match FrockBags to carry with summer frocks

SPENT FOR WOOD FOR TOYSLumber Men of Northwest Report the American-Made Market Is Rapidly Extending.Olympia, Wash.—The American-made toy market is rapidly extending, as indicated in the heavy increased use of wood in the industry, according to state statistics. Last year's Chris-mas toys utilized 23,000,000 feet of northwest wood—cedar, yew, fir, hemlock and white pine. There are 23 varieties of wood used in the manufacture of playthings, basswood, maple and pine leading in usefulness.Toy lumber in demand must be clear of knots, firm grain and easily worked into small objects, with an adaptability to stains, paints and enamels. The notion prevails that toys are made of cheap, cast-off waste.
This is erroneous. Playthings for real American boys or girls must be well made, and good material is necessary.The toy market is based on what children like best to play with. Experts over the country follow the queer trade of discovering just what various sections do for amusement.
Children generally play with things which they see of her people using or working with. Certain industries affect the toy demand and the desire to play.In summer the widespread use of the auto has carried children away from home on week-ends. Invariably the camp is made at a lake or riverside. The little wooden-handled sand shovel, the sand lift and wooden gravel truck, wooden sailboat or canoe have resulted in gigantic sales.
Carloads of lathe-turned handles and wheels have been shipped out of the lumber regions.Various other types are classified as educational, architectural, musical, water, land and air vehicles and novelties.Many Northwest lumber mills make a specialty of selecting suitable wood for the toy market, reserving it until a carload shipment has accumulated.Old Briton's Big MenAbout forty years ago there was unearthed on Coulsdon common (about fourteen miles from London) a British burying ground of tremendous interest to archeologists. By "British" is meant the earliest inhabitants of the island of which we have any knowledge.The bodies unearthed were laid in monolithic stone coffins, and while among them were many children, there were also those of men seven feet tall and over.Oriental Rug MaterialMost oriental rugs have a woolen warp. They are apt to be crooked on account of the elasticity of the wool.
For this reason, cotton is supplanting made to order for the European and American markets.JITNEY DANCEC. A. C. gym Saturday night, Au-

BUILDER WHO CHECKED CARPENTER'S WORK SAVED TROUBLE AND EXPENSE.

Check up measurements with a six-foot rule as building progresses, is the advice given to home-builders by an article in this week's Liberty. "This is insurance against absentmindedness on the part of workmen," the article calls it and goes on to tell the experience of a Spokane, Washington home-builder.

"Thru the exercise of this tell-tale instrument he discovered the south window opening from the breakfast nook had been placed three inches too high. In fact, as it was not a low aperture to begin with, his wife would have been unable to sit at her breakfast table and obtain a view of the yard.

"The outcome was an alteration, believe it, or not, by the carpenters at their own expense. Similar slight deflection, unintentional, but equally annoying, have been found from time to time by means of the six-foot folding rule."

A Profiteering Prophetess

By H. IRVING KING

(Copyright.)

MADAME ZENOBIA, the Veiled Prophetess, was having a dull and unprofitable day. The other side shows at the county fair seemed to be doing well; but there was a deplorable lack of curiosity with regard to "The Secrets of the Past, Present and Future"—Madame Zenobia's stock in trade. Suddenly into her deserted tent rushed a girl of about eighteen, who cried out: "Oh, please hide me! Here's ten dollars."

The veiled prophetess clutched the bill with a firm grip. "Kleptomania," was her mental diagnosis. "There's no place," said she, "but my dressing room, and they would be sure to search that."

"Oh, do something," pleaded the young lady. "I'll give you ten dollars more if you don't let them find me."

Zenobia was a woman of resource and a woman of action. "Come here," said she. The seeress had been a lightning change artist on the stage in her day and, in a surprisingly short time, the two women emerged from the little dressing room. Zenobia clad in the girl's clothes and the girl arrayed as the veiled prophetess.

"Sit there and gaze at that crystal," commanded Zenobia. A minute later and a middle-aged, prosperous-looking man entered the tent. "Ah, here you are," cried he; "they told me you had been seen coming in here. Now, Ellen, you come right straight home. Robert is half distracted, and if I catch that rascal, Murchison, I'll wring his neck. Where would you?" And he placed his hand on the shoulder of the woman who sat with her back toward him. The woman turned and he gazed into the hard-lined face and the sharp, crafty eyes of Zenobia.

"Great cats!" he cried. "I beg pardon; but I thought you were somebody else."

"I am not," responded Zenobia sharply. Across the table the girl behind the veil of silver trembled; but uttered no sound. "Now," said the prophetess as the man departed, "what does all this mean? What's your name besides Ellen?"

"Bancroft," faltered the girl. "I—I was going to run away with George Murchison, but I'm afraid."

"In love with George?" queried Zenobia.

"I thought I was," sobbed Ellen. "but now I don't know. We were going to New York. I am awfully sorry Robert takes it so hard."

"Here," commanded Zenobia, "give me your hand; let me read your palm. Ah! Here it is. I see a young man named George Murchison—a good looking—wears jewelry—flashy sort of fellow—blew into town from the city—talks big and tells everybody what a devil of a fellow he is. There's another fellow named Robert something—"

"Johnson," murmured Ellen.

"Yes, that's it; Robert Johnson," went on the seeress. "Everyday sort of chap—dead in love with you—sober, steady, well-to-do. Known each other ever since you were kids. That was your pa who came in here. Your pa's got money. That's what George is after. Robert is after you. See that line there? That means that you are not going to marry George. You are going to marry Robert and be happy ever after."

"Oh, how do you know? How do you know? Do you see all that in my palm?" cried the amazed girl.

"Every word of it," replied Zenobia. "That's my business. Didn't you read my sign outside—Past, Present and Future told—satisfaction given or no charge? That will be fifty cents extra, please."

"Certainly," said Ellen. "And I am so—so glad. But I don't dare go home. Father will just skin me alive, and Robert will never forgive me."

"Let me look at your palm again," said Zenobia. "Yes—here it is. Your father will hardly scold you at all; and as for Robert—let me see—yes, Robert will be so glad to have you safe back again that he'll be just as good as pie. Fifty cents more, please. Now you stay right here until I come back—don't move."

Silver-veiled and mystically attired distributing her business cards as she went, Zenobia wandered forth into the fair grounds until she located Ellen's father, still searching for tidings of his lost one. To him she made a proposition as follows: He was to give her fifty dollars in hand, and his word not to scold the truant daughter unduly, on condition that Ellen be restored to him safe and repentant. The proposition being accepted, she led him to the waiting girl in the mystic tent!

"Oh father," cried Ellen tearfully. "I suppose you found the letter?"

"Yes, Ellen," he replied, "sooner than you expected, I fancy. The neighbors saw you going this way. I was afraid you'd get lost and came to find you. Reckon Murchison saw me before he could find you and decamped."

"I saw you both," confessed Ellen. "and got scared, and came here. And oh father! this lady has told my fortune so wonderfully—won't you give her five dollars?"

"Hum," said Bancroft—but the ever-ready palm of the prophetess was crossed with another bill.

"For a dull day that's not so bad," said Zenobia as father and daughter departed in earnest conversation. "And every word said was gospel truth, too. When it comes to profiteering your little Zenobia is a prophetess from Profitville."

WINTER GREEN FEED PROBLEM FOR CHICKENS

Legume Hays and Mangel Beets May be Substituted For Sprouted Oats.

Put some legume hay away for the chickens. It helps solve the winter green feed problem.

Experiments in Ohio, Kansas, Texas and California seem to indicate definitely that where no other source of green feed is available the addition of a legume hay will increase the number of eggs produced and their matchability. It will also reduce the mortality from nutritional troubles, points out G. S. Vickers, extension specialist in poultry at the Ohio State university.

Save the hay with the most leaves and of the greenest color for the chickens. An easy way to feed chickens is to provide a rack along the wall and keep hay before them all the time. A though along the bottom of the rack will catch all the leaves that would otherwise be wasted. These can be fed from the mash hopper.

Alfalfa meal may be used if good hay cannot be bought at reasonable prices. The meal should be used in the mash. About ten per cent alfalfa meal will substitute for a like amount of bran.

A combination of mangel beets and legume hay make a good winter combination to use instead of sprouted oats. It may be, concludes Mr. Vickers that hay is about to take the place of our old reliable, but troublesome, sprouted oats as a winter green feed.

AMUSEMENTS

Gloria Swanson sparkles thru her latest picture, "The Untamed Lady" at the Met with all the brilliancy and polish of the finished actress and all the buoyant independence and luxurious wardrobe of a society heiress, who has youth, beauty, social position and — twenty million dollars!

One would naturally think that life for a girl so richly endowed would be one grand, sweet song, but, alas and alack! there is always a fly in the ointment. In her case it is an ungovernable temper, which frightens friends and fiancés and provides the framework on which the comic, dramatic and romantic experiences of the plot are builded.

It is this temperament that prompts her to cheer for Yale when she is sitting in the Princeton stand, during a Yale-Princeton football game. This same devil-may-care spirit tempts her to attend a fashionable society dance in a bathing suit and on another occasion moves her to speak up while a famous musician is playing.

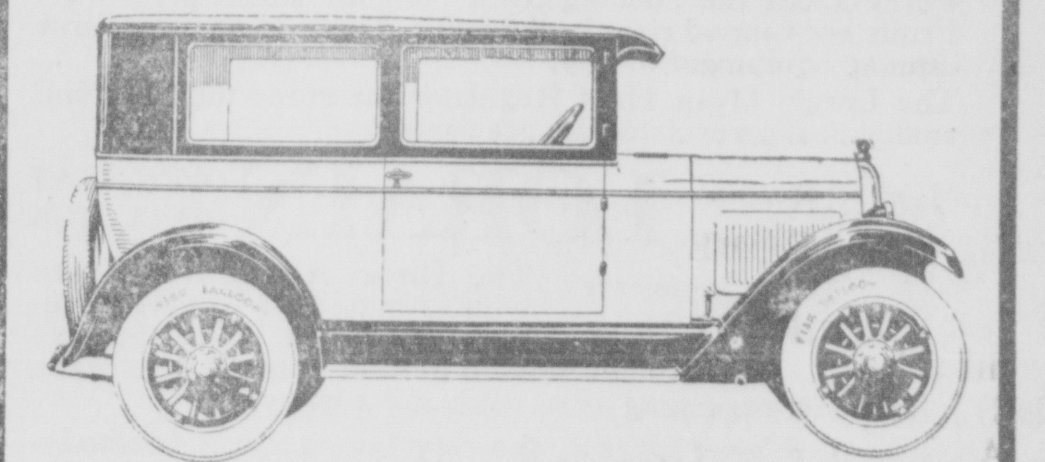

Three times she becomes engaged, and each time the engagement blows up. It is then that fiance No. 4, comes along and determines for her good as well as his own peace of mind to tame her. And then the fun—and action—and thrills, begin in earnest!

Some remarkable yacht scenes during a storm at sea, incidentally showing Gloria shoveling coal in the boiler room, and an exciting chase on horseback, feature the latter portion of the picture. Lavish staging and de luxe backgrounds add to the pictorial beauty of the photoplay, and Frank Tuttle deserves special commendation for his deft direction. Lawrence Gray gives a very spirited performance as Gloria's leading man, and the rest of the cast is more than adequate.

"The Untamed Lady" is an original story, written especially for Miss Swanson by Fannie Hurst, popular American author. James Creelman attended to the adaptation.

Internationally famous, Brown's Saxophone Six comes to Ohio State Fair, August 30 to September 4 for daily appearances. This act has had long vaudeville engagements and at the great Hippodrome Theatre in New York has appeared regularly for a period of years.

NEW RECORDS SET FOR STATE FAIR

Columbus, Ohio.—In the final stages of entry taking for the 1926 Ohio State Fair, practically every department is far above last year, according to Chas. V. Truax, director of agriculture. Several departments are setting new records for Ohio and for the fairs of the country as well.

A week in advance of the Fair opening, 40 more head of horses were entered for the liberal premiums in the horse department than were shown last year when a total of 282 purebred Belgians and Percherons competed in the Coliseum arena.

Practically every class in the cattle department is showing substantial increases in number of entries and a new mark will be established here.

Slightly above last year, entries in the swine classification show substantial increases above a year ago. The same situation prevails in the sheep and poultry departments.

Tides Affect Volcanoes

An interesting solution of the mystery of volcanic eruptions has just been offered by William Bowie of the United States coast and geodetic survey. He advances the theory, says Popular Science Monthly, that volcanic outbursts may be due directly to the pressure of the tides, which twist and wring the earth. The tides, he adds, may also have an influence in building mountains.

Talk With Tramp Brings Discovery of Grant's Desk
Eureka, Calif.—A chance conversation with a tramp led an antique dealer to the discovery of a desk he identified as one used by General Ulysses S. Grant, while stationed at Fort Humboldt, near here, during 1853-54.

"You should have seen the old desk in the building I slept in last night," the hobo told the antique dealer. The dealer found it in an abandoned building and identified it as Grant's by a diagram obtained from another antique dealer during the Panama-Pacific exposition in 1915.

The desk had been thought burned in a building which was destroyed by fire many years ago. A search is now being conducted for a locker, also said to have been used by the Civil war general.

Lesson for August 29

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS—DUTIES TO MAN

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:12-21.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Commandments About Men.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How to Serve Men.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Loving and Helping Others.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Ideal Human Relationships.

I. The Fifth Commandment (v. 12).

1. How this commandment may be broken.

(1). By showing disrespect to parents. Disrespect is shown to parents—

(a) By speaking of them as "the old man" and "the old woman."

(b) By being ashamed to be seen in their company.

(2) By disobedience.

(3) By not supporting them in their old age.

2. Promises annexed to this commandment.

(1) "That it may be well with thee" (Eph. 6:3).

(2) "That thou mayest live long upon the earth."

II. The Sixth Commandment (v. 13).

This is a bulwark thrown around human life. Man was created in God's image. Every attempt to take human life is a thrust at God. This commandment may be broken:

1. By sinful anger (Matt. 5:22).

2. By hatred (I Jno. 3:15).

3. By immoderate recreation.

4. By employers having unsafe surroundings, thereby causing the death of their employees.

5. By sending children to toil in shops and factories before maturity.

6. By suicide.

7. By infanticide.

8. By wars.

III. The Seventh Commandment (v. 14).

This is a bulwark thrown around the home. This commandment may be broken:

1. By unclean thoughts, affections, purposes and imaginations (Matt. 5:27, 28; 15:19).

2. By unchaste conversation.

3. By wanton looks (Isa. 3:16; II Peter 2:14).

4. By immodest apparel.

5. By actual adultery.

6. By divorce.

IV. The Eighth Commandment (v. 15).

This commandment strikes at the sin of theft. This commandment may be broken:

1. By taking that which actually belongs to another.

2. By false weights and measures.

3. By extortion.

4. By employers defrauding employees and the employee failing to do honest work or put in full time.

5. By borrowing and not returning.

6. By going into debt, knowing that payment is impossible.

7. By usury.

8. By graft.

9. By lying advertisements.

11. By making assignments to escape payment of debts.

11. By strong nations oppressing the weaker ones.

V. The Ninth Commandment (v. 16).

The sin aimed at by this command is a most deadly one—that of lying. This commandment may be broken:

1. By actual open lying.

2. By perjury—swearing to falsehoods by the name of God.

3. By slander.

4. By tale-bearing (Lev. 19:16). This is commonly done by repeating a report without investigating its truthfulness.

5. By creating a false impression (Ex. 23:1).

6. By a breach of promise.

7. By withholding the truth.

8. By exaggeration.

9. By flattery.

10. By recommending a man for a position of honor and trust who is unfitted for it.

VI. The Tenth Commandment (v. 17).

This commandment strikes at the desire for that which is unlawful for one to have. The sin does not lie in the desire to possess things, but in the desire to possess that which belongs to another. It is not wrong to have lands and personal property which one may have acquired honestly, but it is wrong to have the lands which belong to another. It is right for a man to have a wife, but it is sinful to have another's wife. This commandment goes back of all the rest. It deals not only with the open violation, but with the inner desires and motives. It strikes at the very purposes of the heart.

Nowhere Else to Go

I have been driven many times to my knees by the overwhelming conviction that I had nowhere else to go. My own wisdom and that of all about me seemed insufficient for that day.—Abraham Lincoln.

Cure for Depression

The best cure for depression is to look around and see what is happening to other people. You are not bearing all the misfortunes of the world.

His Identity

"I am told that 96 rattlesnakes have been killed on that hillside over there in the last month," said a motorist who had stopped his car in the big road to get a drink of water. "Who did it?"

"The durnedest—p'tul—har in the county," responded Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge.—Kansas City Star.

Reason for Impoliteness

Mannishly-dressed Lady—Did you catch any fish, little boy?

Country Boy—No.

M. D. L.—No, what?

Boy (gazing dubiously at her rig)—Durned if I know.

Difficult Stage Part

Shakespeare's character, Hamlet, has 1,589 lines to speak, the greatest number of lines of any of his characters. Some of the famous modern Hamlets have been Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, E. H. Sothern and John Barrymore.

First Reason Enough

As Henry IV of France entered a small French town, the usual salute was not forthcoming. The mayor of this town offered his apology in these terms: "Sire, we did not fire a gun for three reasons. The first is that we have no gun—"—The Outlook.

Deceptive to Speller

Accommodate is a tricky word; even Thomas Jefferson in the original draft of the Declaration of Independence spelled it with one "m." Marshal is another one, and develop another, for who hasn't felt the urge to add another l on the former and a final e on the latter?

Marvelous Human Eye

The eye is the first circle; the horizon which it forms is the second, and throughout nature this primary figure is repeated without end. It is the highest emblem in the cipher of the world.—Emerson.

Now Big Industry

The manufacture of gutta-percha was begun in the United States in 1948. In that year the first submarine cable in this or any other country to be insulated with gutta-percha was laid across the Passaic and Hudson rivers for the telegraph line between New York and Philadelphia.

Be Slow in Condemnation

There is a principle which is a bar against all information, which is proof against all argument, and which cannot fail to keep a man in everlasting ignorance. That principle is condemnation before investigation.—Herbert Spencer.

Maharajah's Dancers Are Seeking New Employment

Karachi.—All the beautiful young dancing girls who flitted about the palace of the maharajah of Indore, whose chief charmer, Mumtaz Begum, lost him his throne, are hunting new jobs.

Application of a rigid economy program in the state of Indore called for the discharge of the entertainers.

Their actual salaries, it is explained, were not so much—only about £3,000 a year—but the cost of upkeep was much greater.

Large sums, it seems, were squandered in satisfying their fastidious little tastes for trinkets, veils and perfumes.

PICNIC AND FISH FRY.

All members of the Logan Elm Grange and their immediate families are invited. It will be held at Cliff Miller's farm along Scippo creek, formerly the Phillips farm, on Tuesday, August 31. ACTION SEEKS VOTE RECOUNT IN CINCINNATI

Suit in mandamus to compel the Hamilton county board of elections to canvass the vote for Republican candidates at the recent primary election was filed in the state supreme court Wednesday by Charles A. Meyers Jr., who claims to have been nominated for commissioner of that county.

The suit, while brought in Meyers' name, involves also the nomination of Charles P. Taft II for prosecuting attorney and other candidates, and is expected to bring about a solution of the mixup there in the counting of the vote.

Assistant Attorney General H. H. Griswold has held there was no count of the vote in disputed precincts because the tallies did not correspond to the summaries.

The mandamus action is expected to test validity of Griswold's ruling.

Chief Justice C. T. Marshall and Judge E. S. Matthias allowed an alternative writ of mandamus and fixed answer day as September 1. The suit may not be heard on its merits until the court reconvenes September 28, or possibly before that time, if a full court can be obtained.

Because of the mixup no official canvass has been made of any of the Republican vote cast in the county for state and other candidates. The secretary of state cannot make his official report on any state office until the Hamilton county official vote is received.

OHIO PARTY PLATFORM

So far as the platform declarations of either party in Ohio is concerned there is nothing to criticize if viewed strictly from the standpoint of the respective parties. So far as the Democrats have had anything to do with administration in Ohio its record is anathema to the Republicans. So far as the Republican legislature has had to do with legislation and with blocking the Democratic administration it is anathema to the Democrats. So far as candidates are concerned, each party pledges itself to do the best it can to defeat the nominees of the other and has constructed its platform as seems to it best suited to capture voters.

Practically the only new issue before the voters of Ohio this year is the obnoxious primary system. The Democrats alone were courageous enough to take a positive stand, altho, regrettably, that is in favor of the retention of the system while they vigorously condemn practices that the system makes possible. The Republicans, at the last moment, changed their mind about making a declaration against the system as it stands, and say they will abide by the referendum to be taken. There was a time in the history of the Republican party when it had leaders sufficiently courageous to come out squarely on public issues for the guidance of the followers of their party.

Both platforms are "glittering generalities" on the subject of law enforcement, which every citizen of worth favors. Neither has anything specific to say on what shall be done about obnoxious statutes, the modification of which a large part of the electorate demands, altho they may practice respectful observance of them while they stand.

The Republicans have taken a saner stand on agricultural relief than do the Democrats. They follow the tip of Senator Fess that "agriculture is coming back, and is not to be helped along its way by any measures that are akin to greenbackism, populism and free silver." They let that issue ride with a general declaration that agriculture should be put on an equal plane with other industries. The Democrats, however, ark back to the old freight rate cry, with a demand that they shall be lowered, disregarding the fact that freight rates cannot well be lowered so long as railroad operating costs, including wages, equipment and all supplies, are so high, if transportation for the farmer is to be maintained on any sort of adequate basis.

There are other declarations in both platforms which will be criticized during the campaign by the respective opposition. There are others conversely commendable. On the whole, they are characteristic party declarations which will be championed by respective party campaigners as occasion arises, altho neither will attract so much attention from voters as the personalities and the merits of the respective candidates or count so much in the November result as will the pogetativeness of those same candidates—Cincinnati Enquirer.
